FORFIGN INTERCORPRET.-Seme of the or wise fathers? have been collisting a few strangers, vilio reside Lore furling the sum mer, to assist them in endravoring to effect their proposed Reformation in our Muniei, at affairs. What the object of these men on he we know not, unless it is to secure a fewn Council who will tax them low, to their satisfaction, and regulate matters generally to their liking. We do not think that the crizens of Newport, those "to the manor born," will quietly subject to and such interference on the part of strangers; if they wish to reside here a portion of the year, they must take things as tory find them, and not expect to revolutomze everything, with the assistance of a low small men who are ever ready to become totalies to wealth and fineled greatness. What say the people of Newport to such operations? Are they willing to give up the control of their affairs into the hands of the little clique of " wise fathers" and a junto of strangers, who would regulate everything to their own Goig, and to suit their nive convenience, n they could ! We think not; and if not to them come up fandy to-morrow, and put down this rehence of pretended. Refermation, which is simply a plot on the part of a few men to control the Town, and put a set of men in office who will in all matters endeavor to suit those who come ben to reside a few months. Let the people try this Reformation system, if they want to have now offices are ated and more and neavier salaries to pay; they will* go enough of it in one year, we will guaranto . We see through the whole scheme and we warn the freezent to be comince bow they are entrapped. Let the old offgers and their friends all come up to the po'ls to-morrow, and put a perpetual quie res upon this movement. Numport people generally can take care of their own afhurs without the dictation of a few men, or the interference of strangers who have noth arg but a sidfish object to goin and & Co .- We do not remember any rence instance, in which a publishing most so quickly established for itself a refrable and darable from as in the care Title Botten light, where many are at he head of this arricle. The hierary pubie strendy ovie telem a roalederable debt of natified, and their process for the fature uply that that delayed be largely increas-The character of their issues has been of the highest order. They have with wise forethought and excellent judgment still they have been maintained, and, what dioren those standarl works, which are er will be consecrated by the edicts of round er tielsen. Their editions are presented too in a style, which readers them worthy of a place in the most o'egant. Libraries, while the prices, at which they are sold, are such as to bring them, within the reach of the hem dest means.

In proof of this well-merited commendation, we would specify in the first instance their Studyspeore, -- an edition, which, both for the size and leasity of its typography and the correctness of its text, is quite unsurpassed. It is presented to the public in numbers at the extraordinarily low price of 25 cents-each being canbell-shed with a magnificent, theal partrait of some beautiful fermione creating of the author's mind and each containing an entire play.

In the second prace; their edules of David Hume's long celebrated History of England in six volumes, correctly and handsomely printed and nicely bound in tone in, - to which is prefixed an account of the anthor's own life winten by hunself, to gether with a faithful and elegant, portrait on steel. We need burdly romack that on acquaintance with this history has been for many years regarded as requisite to a good education. Although common in large libraries, no bandsome and cheap edition has until now been attainable.

In the third place; their edulen of Macaulay's History of England, two volumes of which have appeared, and which though thus unfinished, has perhaps found more readers than any bank of the present century. As Macaslay begins where Hume eods-manely at the reign of Junes 11the links of the historical natrative are continuous and both of these great works may be read in connection. They present a perfect series of events; and the two works should accompany each other in every well-assorted collection. In fact, these eight beautiful volumes may justly be considered as indispensable to every household filtrary, and we advise all parents, who have at heart the improvement of their children, to spare something from the luxuries or even from the necessaries of life, with which to parchase them. In the fourth place; their edition of Gibprin. Two volumes have appeared, and there are to be find more to complete the work. It may werefore, to use the language of Art, be looked upon as a companion-piece to Dinne's History. This edition is furnished with notes by the Rev. H. H. Milman, which greatly enhance its value. It has been visely remarked that " the literature of Europe offers no substitate" for this make work. It has obtained undispoted possession, as rightful occupant. of the vast period which it comprehends .-To show to the reader the value of the present edition, it may be observed that Mr. Milman has conscientionally corrected all the mistakes, into which Gibbon seems to have wilfully fallen, with regard to the infoence of Christanity in the world, and that he has made depions use of the labora of M. Chazot, in his Prench translation; of Weigh in Ins German translation, and of the new edition of Le Benn's history of the lower empire, with notes by M. H. Martin and M. Brosset. Bathing in the Dead Sea .-- About six o'clock in the morning 1 reached the shore. I was designus of ascertaining the truth of the assertion that 'nothing sinds in the Dead Sea.' I swam a considerable distance from the shore, and about four yards from the beach I was beyond my depth; the water was the coldest I ever felt, and the taste of it most detestable; it was that of a so-Lation of nitre, mixed with an infusion of quassia. Its bunyancy I found to be far greater than that of any sea I ever swaïn он, ные ехепринд d.e. Вихию, which is extremely salt. FALLS OF ST. ANTHONY.—The Lamartine, on her last trip to the Upper Mississippi, went fully as high as St. Anthony, being just three miles nearer the Launtain-head of the Father of Waters than any steamer had gone before.

The citizens of St. Paul, and its vicuity had offered a premium of $200 to the first stemmer, that would reach Steel's Point, a bend situated at the first ledge of rocks on ascending to the Falls. The stage of the water being favorable, Capt. Marsh determined to make the attempt with the Lamartine.

The beauty and fashion of St. Pank were accordingly taken aboard, and with colors flying and drums beating, the steamer was headed towards, the Falls.
